PREFACE

A description and grouping of the concepts in ethnopoetics is attempted here.

My thanks are due to all colleagues, in Israel and abroad, who devoted their time to read and comment on the list of terms: Hayya Bar-Yitzhak (Haifa), Rachel Golandski (Jerusalem), Bengt Holbek (Copenhagen), Zippora Kagan (Haifa), Bengt af Klintberg (Stockholm), G.A. Levinton (Leningrad), Sebastiano Lo Nigro (Catania), Pierre Maranda (Quebec), Dov Noy (Jerusalem), Dan Pagis (Jerusalem), Galith Rokem-Hazan (Jerusalem), and Marie-Louise Tenèze (Paris).

The list of German terms was kindly provided by Gerda Grober-Glück (Bonn) and Erhardt Guttgemanns (Bonn), and the list of Russian terms by Dimitri Segal (Jerusalem). Especially I want to thank here Prof. Segal who worked with me on the manuscript and helped solve many a problem. Yet, for whatever flaws and insufficiencies the work suffers, I alone am responsible.

The completion of the work and its publication were made possible by grants awarded to the author by the Faculty of Humanities, Tel Aviv University and by the Fine Arts Division of the Israel Ministry of Education and Culture, headed by Dr. Jozeph Michman, whose help is gratefully acknowledged.

INTRODUCTION

We attempt here to define and group the concepts developed in ethnopoetics. The list does not form a system of concepts and their labels, but is rather a snap-shot of the situation in the discipline. Therefore, only those chapters adopted from a sub-field which has developed its conceptual scheme systematically form a more or less coherent unit.

The concepts are arranged according to the schools of thought which produced them, and defined in terms of the respective schools; no criticism is attempted. The numbering of the terms is employed to demonstrate their interdependence and the order of hierarchy. The definitions are given as brief as possible, and are interdependent. Every appearance of a listed term in a definition is followed by the number of the term in our list; thus, it can be easily looked up, and the definition in question amplified. Since in published essays concepts are rarely accompanied by a concise definition, the definitions taken from such works had to be rewritten. Even when the page of a work is quoted, our definition is generally not an exact quote. When the definitions of a term given by several scholars differ, all definitions are listed, and given by the same number followed by different lower case letters (see, for instance, "1.1.1 Motif"). Definitions and labels supplied by colleagues are followed by their initials and the year of publication (which is listed in References), where applicable; where no year of publication is given, this signifies that the author received the information in private communication.

In chapter "4, Genre in ethnopoetry" a general framework for the definition of ethnopoetic genres as a system is attempted. In devising the system of genres, we did not start from current labels and try to define them (what "is" a legend?) but rather from the material itself, grouping it and describing these groups. A genre is not defined by itself, but as part of a system, in accordance with three determinants: the genre's location in the systems of the ethnopoetic mode, and the temporal and spatial frameworks; an additional quality is indicated, namely the prosodic form in which the genre is usually set. This quality is considered one of the main distinguishing features of a literary genre; yet observation has shown that in ethnopoetry it is of secondary importance: most genres are found in both prosodic forms, prose and verse.

As far as possible, existing terms are used to label the concepts, in accordance with the current usage of these terms. Also, we attempted to limit as far as possible the usage of terms which are already pinpointed to very specific meanings in a neighboring discipline (for instance, "2.1.8 Transfiguration" is employed instead of the more usual "transformation", as this latter term has a very specific meaning in generative linguistics; the same is the case with "3.1.1 Presentation", which is employed instead of the heavily loaded "performance").

General notions in ethnology, sociology, semiotics and linguistics are not included; their inclusion would add up to a rather full list of terms in these disciplines, something which exceeds the scope of the present work. Only terms from those neighboring disciplines which have a direct application in ethnopoetics are included here. This application is pointed out within the definition of the term (see, for instance, "3.0.1.1 Speech"). Research methods are also excluded from our list, as they demand a more detailed encyclopedic description, and would therefore transcend our framework.

Our list is but a first attempt, necessarily made from a subjective viewpoint; we await criticism.

GENERAL TERMS

0.1

Folklore

g Folklore
r Fol'klor

Broad sense: Culturally distinctive traditions transmitted orally, or visually, by imitation. Includes: literature, music, dance and visual arts; folk belief, custom and technology. Restricted sense (maintained by American anthropologists and East European scholars): Ethnopoetry (0.4), oral literature (0.4.1).

0.2

Folkloristics

g Volkskunde; Europäische Ethnologie; Folkloristik
r Fol'kloristika

Science whose object of study is folklore (in the broad sense — 0.1); undefined for its method.

0.3

Oral tradition

g Mündliche Überlieferung
r Ustnaja tradicija

Knowledge transmitted from generation to generation orally, or by imitation.

0.4

Ethnopoetry Folk literature

g Volksdichtung; Volksliteratur
r Narodnaja literatura/slovesnost'

Works of literature, transmitted by performers in

2.1.7.1	Anthropomorphous term	g Anthropomorpher Ausdruck r Antropomorfnyj element A basically anthropomorphous contentual term; (2.1); may be a natural (a human) or a fabulous being.	2.1.10	Character	g Person r Personazh Contentual term (2.1) realizing a narrative role (3.3.5) in a work. (PVJ 1928a)
2.1.7.2	Zoomorphic term	g Zoomorpher Ausdruck r Zoomorfnyj element A basically zoomorphic contentual term (2.1); it may be a realistic animal or a fabulous being.	2.1.10.1.1	Individual character	g Einzelperson r Individual'nyj personazh A character (2.1.10) realized by a single personage.
2.1.7.3	Object-like term	g Objekthaftter Ausdruck r Predmetnyj element Contentual term (2.1) basically object-like in shape; it may be a realistic object with or without fabulous qualities, or a fabulous entity.	2.1.10.1.2	Group character	g Gruppenperson r Gruppovoj personazh A single character (2.1.10) realized by a group of similar personages ("the robbers said . . .")
2.1.8	Transfiguration of the contentual term	g Transfiguration des Ausdrückes r Preobrazovanie elementa The transition of a contentual term (2.1) from one mode of being (4.1) into another (realistic/fabulous) or, from one shape into another (anthropomorphic – 2.1.7.1/zoomorphic – 2.1.7.2./object-like – 2.1.7.3).	2.1.10.2.1	Unique character	g Einzigartige Person r Unikal'nyj personazh A specific character (2.1.10), carrying no load of representation.
2.1.9	Modification of terms	g Modifizierung der Ausdrücke r Izmenenie elementov; Transformacija Substitution of contentual terms (2.1) in the ethnopoetry of a culture in the course of time. (MP 1972a: 342; PVJ 1928b)	2.1.10.2.2	Typical character	g Typische Person r Tipichnyj personazh A character (2.1.10) representing a category of terms (2.1.6).
			2.1.10.3	Anonymous character	g Namenlose Person r Anonimnyj personazh Any character (2.1.10) in an ethnopoetic work, who does not bear an individual name.

2.1.11

Figure

g Figur

r Figura

A named character (2.1.10).

2.1.11.1

Historical figure

g Historische Figur

r Istoricheskaja figura

A historical figure functioning as a character (2.1.10) in an ethnopoetic work.

2.1.11.2

Quasi-historical figure

g Quasihistorische Figur

r Kvazi-istoricheskaja figura

An imaginary figure appearing in an ethnopoetic work, believed by the narrating/singing community (2.4.1.2) to be historical.

2.1.11.3

Fabulous figure

g Fabelwesen; Fabelfigur

r Sverhestestvennaja figura

Specific fabulous beings (f.i., specific deities, monsters) playing in ethnopoetic works.

2.1.11.4

Recurrent figure

g Wiederkehrende Figur

r Postojannaja figura

A particular character (2.1.10) with stable distinctive features (2.1.2), appearing in a cycle of ethnopoetic works.(3.5.1). The character may be historical (2.1.11.1), quasi-historical (2.1.11.2), fabulous (2.1.11.3) or a figure bearing a stable every-man's name.

2.1.12

Requisite

g Realia

r Rekvizitnyj element; Realija

Being, artifact or concept taken from the real world, which in the ethnopoetic work functions to qualify characters (2.1.10) and the temporal (2.2.2) and spatial (2.3.0) framework of the work.

2.2

Temporal aspect

g Aspekt der Zeit

r Vremennoj aspekt

(after JH 1976)

2.2.1

Category of time

g Arten der Zeit

r Tip vremeni

Kind of time unique to each category of characters (2.1.6), which appertains to their respective special worlds.

2.2.1.1.

Human/Historical time

g Zeit der Menschen; Historische Zeit

r Chelovecheskoe/Istoricheskoe vremja

The order of time which is believed to have been created in the mythic epoch, flowing regularly thereafter until the beginning of the eschatologic epoch, when it shall cease to flow.

2.2.1.2

Fabulous time

g Zeit der Fabelwesen

r Sverhestestvennoe vremja

Time in which fabulous beings (miraculous, demonic and marvelous) live; it stands still, or almost still (fabulous beings do not age). If humans enter the realm of the fabulous, they might become subject to the laws of fabulous time; the opposite does not seem to hold true.

2.2.1.3

Mythic time

g Mythische Zeit

r Mificheskoe vremja

Human time (2.2.1.1) in the making; does not flow regularly but is changeable at will (thus, mythic beings (deities) are born, grow to a certain age, and then do not change any more.) The mythic time terminates when human time (2.2.1.1) starts; from then on, the deities exist in their specific kind of fabulous time (2.2.1.2).

2.2.2

Historical framework

g Historisches Schema

r Istoricheskaja shema

The general historical setting of the ethnopoetic repertoire of a culture (2.4.1.5); this is constructed from the settings of the individual texts. The ethnopoetic historical framework is identical neither with the narrator's conscious historical scheme nor with objective history. The repertoire of each social unit (nation, tribe, clan, village) has its own particular framework. All societies seem to begin theirs with a mythic epoch, many concluding it with an eschatologic epoch; the periods of "recent generations", "our generation" and "timeless present" also appear to be universal.	located. The main points in it are usually known to the narrator (2.4.1.6.4) and his audience (2.4.1.3) from personal experience.

2.3 Spatial aspect
2.3.0 Spatial framework	g Aspekt des Raumes r Prostranstvennyj aspekt (after JH 1976)	2.3.3 "Our country" g "Unser Land" r "Nasha zemlja" Undefined space in which the natural and social order of "our district" is valid. Not known from personal experience to narrating community (2.4.1.2).
2.3.1 "Our settlement"	g "Unsere Siedlung" r "Nashe poselenie" The settlement of the narrating community and its close surroundings, within which the narrator (2.4.1.6.4) and his audience (2.4.1.3) are well-acquainted.	2.3.4 "This world" g "Diesseits" r "Etot svet" The whole realm of human life.
2.3.2 "Our district"	g "Unser Bezirk" r "Nasha okruga" The district in which "our settlement" (2.3.1) is	2.3.5 "In-between-space" g "Zwischenraum" r "Pomezhutochnoe prostranstvo" Space between this world (2.3.4) and afterworld (2.3.6), in which are located, for instance, Fairyland, the numskull country, the tall-tale-world, and the Earthly Paradise.
		2.3.6 "Afterworld" g "Jenseits" r "Tot svet" The abode of the souls of the dead and of the deities.
		2.3.7 Symbolic location g Symbolischer Ort r Simvolicheskoe mesto/lokus A location appearing in a work which symbolizes an entity, concept or value in the culture of the narrating community (2.4.1.2). May be real or imaginary, and is situated in space 3–6 (2.3.3 – 2.3.6). 2.3.8 Mythic space g Mythischer Raum r Mificheskoe prostranstvo Spaces 1–7 (2.3.1 – 2.3.7) in the making; mythic space exists before the beginning of historical time (2.2.1.1), and is differentiated from the other realms of the temporal axis.

2.4 Socio-psychological aspect	g Soziologisch-psychologischer Aspekt r Sociologicheskij-psihologicheskij podhod	2.4.1.5 Repertoire of a community
2.4.1 Biology of ethnopoetry	g Biologie der Volksliteratur r Zhizn' fol'kloru; [Konkretnoe] sushchestvovanie fol'kloru	2.4.1.6 Carrier of tradition
	The social, cultural and psychological conditions of narrating/singing (the learning process of the performer, the relationship between the performer, the work, and the audience).
2.4.1.1 Narrating/Singing	g Das Erzählen; Das Singen r Ispolnenie	2.4.1.6.1 Active carrier of ethnopoetry
	The presentation of a tale/song.
2.4.1.2 The narrating/singing community	g Erzähl/Singgemeinschaft r Obshchina nositelej fol'kloru	2.4.1.6.2 Passive carrier of ethnopoetry
	A community (neighborhood, village, tribe) with an established ethnopoetic tradition and routine (a repertoire of works, permanent performers (2.4.1.6.4) and audience (2.4.1.3).
2.4.1.3 Audience of a performer	g Publikum eines Darstellers r Auditorija ispolnitelja; Slushateli	2.4.1.6.3 Informant
	A group which listens permanently to a particular performer (2.4.1.6.4), and accompanies him throughout his life.
2.4.1.4 Repertoire of a performer	g Repertoire eines Darstellers r Repertuar ispolnitelja	2.4.1.6.4 Performer Interpreter
	All works known and habitually presented by a performer (2.4.1.6.4).
		g Repertoire einer Gemeinschaft r Repertuar obshchiny nositelej fol'kloru
		All the works which are transmitted in a community (2.4.1.2) at a specific time.
		g Träger der Tradition r Hranitel' tradicii Individual who maintains traditions of his society, transmitting them to the young, and/or arranging its rites. In every community there are only a few active carriers (2.4.1.6.1).
		g Aktiver Träger der Volksliteratur r Aktivnyj hranitel' fol'kloru
		A regular performer of ethnopoetry before an audience (see 2.4.1.3, 2.4.1.6.4).
		g Passiver Träger der Volksliteratur r Passivnyj hranitel' fol'kloru Person, knowing the tradition, but not performing ethnopoetry (for various reasons: rights of presentations, etc.); functions as a critic of the active carrier of ethnopoetry (2.4.1.6.1). (KME, MP)
		g Informant r Informant
		An individual who informs the investigator of the culture of his ethnic group.
		g Darsteller; Interpret r Ispolnitel'
		An individual who has the artistic ability and social recognition to perform units of the folk tradition in any medium (such as a story/tale-teller, raconteur, narrator; singer, bard, dancer, artisan) (See 2.4.1.6.1).

2.4.1.7.1	Presented text	g Dargestellter Text r Predstavljaemyj tekst	Text in its existential situation (2.4.2.6.a), i.e., presented to the native audience (2.4.1.3). (SD)	social organization and culture (to be distinguished from “use” – 2.4.2.5).
2.4.1.7.2	Demonstrated text	g Demonstriertes Text r Demonstriruemjyj tekst	Text presented in “artificial” circumstances, for the benefit of the investigator. (SD)
2.4.2	Function and use	g Funktion und Gebrauch r Funkcija i ispol'zovanie; Upotreblenie
2.4.2.1	Message	g Botschaft r Soobshchenie	The meaning which the ethnopoetic work bears in the framework of the value system of the narrating society (2.4.1.2). This meaning is conveyed through the narrative complication (3.4.3.1) and the narrative resolution (3.4.3.2).
2.4.2.2	Conflict and solution in the ethnopoetic work	g Konflikt und Lösung im ethnopoetischen Werk r Konflikt i razreshenie konflikta v fol'klornom proizvedenii	National, social or universal human problems and conflicts, and their solutions, are conveyed through the poetic images of the work; they are expressed by the narrative complication (3.4.3.1) and narrative resolution (3.4.3.2). The problems and solutions are not always on the surface level of the work, and many times have to be inferred from the analysis of its contentual elements.
2.4.2.3	Social function of the ethnopoetic work	g Soziale Funktion des ethnopoetischen Werkes r Social'naja funkcija fol'klornogo proizvedenija	The function of the work's message in the overall
2.4.2.4	Psychological function of an ethnopoetic work	g Psychologische Funktion des ethnopoetischen Werkes r Psihologicheskaja funkcija fol'klornogo proizvedenija	The subconscious function of the message in the psyche of an average member of a society.
2.4.2.4.1	Simple forms	g Einfache Formen r Prostyje formy	A. Jolles' conception of the ethnopoetic genre (4) according to its function: an ethnopoetic genre is a “simple [literary] form” which answers a certain basic psychic need, and can be defined on the basis of this need. (JA 1929)
2.4.2.5	Use of ethnopoetry in society	g Gebrauch der Volksliteratur in der Gesellschaft r Ispol'zovanie/Upotreblenie fol'klora v obshchestve v konkretnoj situacii	The social occasion and specific purposes in relation to which a work is enacted (for instance, as entertainment; as part of a ritual; as means to achievement of ecstasy; as proof in a court case; as a “character” of rights) (to be distinguished from function – 2.4.2.3). (MB 1926)
2.4.2.6.a	“Sitz im Leben”	g “Sitz im Leben” r Konkretnoe sushchestvovanie fol'klora	The situation in which the work exists in society (existential situation).
2.4.2.6.b	Context	g Kontext r Kontekst	The specific social situation in which a particular item of folklore is enacted or employed. (DA 1964: 255–256)

SEMIOTICAL APPROACH

3

Structural-literary approach

- g Struktural-literarische Methode
- r Strukturno-literaturovedcheskij podhod

Approach oriented by questions of the literary construction of the ethnopoetic works on all its levels.

General notions of syntax and semantics are not given here. Only such terms are brought that have a direct application in ethnopoetic theory.

3.0.1.1 Speech (parole)

- g Rede
- r Rech

Language as spoken by the individuals (in ethnopoetry, the individual unique presentation of a work, its concrete realization, for instance, the variants in the historical-philological approach – 1.1.4).
(SFd 1916)

3.0.1.2 Language (langue)

- g Sprache
- r Jazyk

The objective language abstracted from individual speeches (in ethnopoetry, the “objective story” abstracted from many variants, for instance, the tale-type in the historical-philological approach – 1.1).
(SFd 1916)

3.0.2.1 Emic unit

- g Emische Einheit
- r Emicheskaja edinica

A structural unit in a system (in ethnopoetry, for instance, the narrative role – 3.3.5, and the action – 3.3.6, 3.3.8.2).
(PK 1967, DA 1962)

3.0.2.2 Etic unit

- g Etische Einheit
- r Eticheskaja edinica

A universal content unit, not bound to a particular system (in ethnopoetry, for instance, motif in the historical-philological approach – 1.1.1).

(PK 1967, DA 1962)

3.0.3 Morphology

- g Morphologie
- r Morfologija

The patterns of plot composition in folktales.
(NAI 1973: 26; PVJ 1928a; DA 1964)

3.0.4 Narrative grammar/ combinatorics

- g Narrative Grammatik; Erzählgrammatik
- r Narrativnaja/Povestvovatel'naja grammatika

Narrative syntax (3.0.4.1), narrative lexicon (3.0.4.2) and narrative semantics (3.0.4.3, 3.1.5) form the narrative grammar.
(KME, MP)

3.0.4.1 Narrative syntax

- g Narrative Syntax; Erzählsyntax
- r Narrativnyj/Povestvovatel'nyj sintaksis

System of patterns, structures and models according to which the organization of the ethnopoetic plot is investigated. (See 3.1.4, 3.3)

3.0.4.2 Narrative lexicon

- g Narratives Lexikon; Erzähllexikon
- r Narrativnyj/Povestvovatel'nyj slovar'

Set of the contentual units (terms – 2.1) of a culture’s ethnopoetry (2.4.1.5).

3.0.4.3 Narrative semantics

- g Narrative Semantik; Erzählsemantik
- r Narrativnaja/Povestvovatel'naja semantika

The systems of meaning and message in ethnopoetry. (See 3.1.5, 3.4).

3.0.5.1 Slot

- g “Slot”; Inhaltsform
- r Jachejka

Elementary abstract unit in the framework of a model (such as the narrative role – 3.3.5 – or the narrative action – 3.3.6, 3.3.8.2).

3.0.5.2	Filler	g "Filler"; Inhaltssubstanz r Zapohnitel' The contentual unit functioning in a single slot – 3.0.5.1 (such as a narrative character – 3.3.8.4 or a narrative deed – 3.3.8.5).	3.0.8.1	Narrative work	g Narratives Werk r Povestvovanie Work comprising a chain of events which follows a line of plot development with a climax of narrative complication (3.4.3.1) and resolution (3.4.3.2). The work may be of either prose or verse texture (3.1.3).
3.0.6.1	Narrative paradigm	g Narratives Paradigma; Erzählparadigma r Narrativnaja/Povestvovatel'naja paradigma A set of substitutable characters (3.3.8.4) or deeds (3.3.8.5). (MP)	3.0.8.2	Quasi-narrative work	g Quasi-narratives Werk r Kvazi-povestvovanie Work comprising a chain of events in a chronological order, which does not follow a line of plot development, and has no climax of narrative complication (3.4.3.1) and resolution (3.4.3.2) (Example: A formula tale – 4.4.1).
3.0.6.2	Narrative syntagm	g Narratives Syntagma; Erzählsyntagma r Narrativnaja/Povestvovatel'naja sintagma Concatenation of roles (3.3.5) and functions (3.3.6). (MP)	3.0.8.3	Non-narrative work	g Nicht-narratives Werk r Nepovestvovatel'noe proizvedenie Work featuring no chain of events, but a static image or a single event (Example: A proverb – 4.4.5).
3.0.6.3	Elementary narrating string	g Elementare Erzählfolge r Elementarnaja narrativnaja/povestvovatel'naja cepochka/posledovatel'nost Short narrative syntagms (3.0.6.2) which enact either of two basic operations, reduction or homology (metaphors, metonyms, clichés, as in proverbs (4.4.5) and riddles (4.4.6)). (MP)	3.0.9.1	Text composition	g Komponierung des ethnopoetischen Textes r Sjuzhetosozdanie The employment of an ethnopoetic canon (0.8) in improvising any single presentation of a text. (NAI 1973: 33)
3.0.6.4	Narrative unit	g Narrative Einheit; Erzähleinheit r Narrativnaja/Povestvovatel'naja edinica A syntagm (3.0.6.2) which can be formalized as an analytic proposition. (MP)	3.0.9.2	Plot composition	g Komponierung des Erzählgerüstes r Sjuzhetoslozhenie The historical process of the accretion of a stable chain of motifs (1.1.1) into episodes, and of a stable chain of episodes to form a narrative. (NAI 1973: 33)
3.0.7	Epic law	g Epische Gesetze r Epicheskie pravila Any regularity and patterning on any level, of an ethnopoetic work. (OA 1909)	3.1	Levels of analysis	g Ebenen der Analyse r Urovni analiza

3.1.1	Patterns of presentation	g Struktur der Darstellung r Struktura ispolnenija The audial (musical), visual and kinetic constitution of the presentation.	to each individual performer (2.4.1.6.4) within the framework of the ethnopoetic canon (0.8) of his culture, and of the specific school which he carries on.
3.1.2	Wording	g Sprachmaterial r Slovesnyj material The linguistic matter of an ethnopoetic work; this is a subject for strictly linguistic study.	3.2.2 Style of the ethnopoetry of a culture
3.1.3	Texture	g Textur r Jazykovaja frakturna The structure of wording in ethnopoetry: the lexical, stylistic and prosodic features of the wording (3.1.2).	3.2.3 Formula
3.1.4	Plot structure	g Struktur des Erzählgerüstes r Struktura sjuzhetra The patterning on the level of narration. (See 3.0.4.1, 3.3).	3.2.4 Routine clause
3.1.5	Narrative semantics	g Semantische Ebene r Semanticeskij uroven' The patterning of the content, meaning and message (see 3.0.4.3, 3.4).	3.2.5 Parallelism
3.2	Textural patterns	g Muster der Textur r Jazykovaja faktura Notions and tools of general poetics are presupposed; here only notions pertaining specifically to ethnopoetry are brought, as given by Lord (1960).	3.2.6 Variability
3.2.1	Individual style of performer	g Persönlicher Stil des Darstellers r Individual'nyj stil' ispolnitelja The use of prosodic and dramatic means peculiar	g Variabilität r Variantnost'; Izmenchivost' Quality of wording (3.1.2) and texture (3.1.3)

	to be unfixed: The wording of a work varies from one improvised presentation (3.1.1) to the next.
3.3 Plot structure	g Struktur des Erzählgerüsts r Struktura sjuzhetu (See 3.0.4.1, 3.1.4) (PVJ 1928a; JH 1977a)	3.3.4.a Function Motifeme
3.3.1 Plot	g Erzählgerüst r Sjuzhet The organization of the events in a story.	An act of a narrative role (3.3.5), defined from the point of view of its significance for the course of the action. (NAI 1973; PVJ 1928a [1968:21]; DA 1962: 100–102)
3.3.2 Whole narrative	g Ganze Erzählung r Celostnoe povestvovanie A plot unit which is composed of one or more moves (3.3.3). It may have attached boundary elements (3.5.5).	3.3.4.b Eidon
3.3.3 Move	g Gang r Hod An abstract structural unit composed of narrative functions (3.3.4) with no boundary elements (3.5.5), which should not include more than one unit of complication (3.4.3.1) and resolution (3.4.3.2). (PVJ 1928a)	3.3.5 Narrative role
3.3.4 Narrative function	g Narrative Funktion; Erzählfunktion r Narrativnaja/Povestvovatel'naja funkcija An abstract unit of plot (3.3.1) development, composed of two narrative roles (3.3.5) and one action (3.3.8.2); the narrative roles are differentiated into the subject narrative role (3.3.8.1), which performs an action (3.3.8.2) in respect to the object narrative role (3.3.8.3).	3.3.6 Narrative relation
		3.3.7 Connective
		g Konnektor r Svjazka; Konnektor Units of narration connecting functions (3.3.4)

	and moves (3.3.3). The connective may either be (a) an information (1) to a character (3.3.8.4) in the narrative or (2) commentary to the listener; (b) a transition in: (1) state (transfiguration of term – 2.1.8), (2) time (2.2) or (3) space (2.3).
3.3.8 The components of the narrative function	g Komponenten der narrativen Funktion r Komponenty narrativnoj/Povestvovatel'noj funkciij (after Jason 1977a)	3.3.8.5 Narrative deed
3.3.8.1 Narrative subject	g Narratives Subjekt; Erzählsubjekt r Narrativnyj/Povestvovatel'nyj subjekt The narrative role (3.3.5) which is the agent of the narrative action (3.3.8.2) in the function (3.3.4).	3.4 Semantic patterns
3.3.8.2 Narrative action	g Narrative Aktion; Erzählaktion r Narrativnyj/Povestvovatel'nyj akt The action which the narrative subject (3.3.8.1) performs towards the narrative object (3.3.8.3). (See 3.3.6) (PVJ 1928a)	3.4.1 Semantic system
3.3.8.3 Narrative object	g Narratives Objekt; Erzählobjekt r Narrativnyj/Povestvovatel'nyj objekt The narrative role (3.3.5) to which the deed (3.3.8.5) (relation – 3.3.6) of the narrative subject (3.3.8.1) is directed.	3.4.1.a 3.4.1.b
3.3.8.4 Narrative character	g Narrative Person; Erzählperson r Narrativnyj/Povestvovatel'nyj personazh A contentual notion: The contentual term (2.1.1 – 2.1.11.4) which “fills” (3.0.5.2) the slot (3.0.5.1) of the narrative role (3.3.5) (the character “realizes” the role).	3.4.2 Cognitive guideline
		g Narrative Handlung; Erzählhandlung r Narrativnoe/Povestvovatel'noe dejstvie A contentual notion: Filler (3.0.5.2) of the slot (3.0.5.1) of the narrative action (3.3.6) (the deed “realizes” the action). g Narrative Semantik; Erzählsemantik r Narrativnaja/Povestvovatel'naja semantika (See 3.0.4.3, 3.1.5) g Semantisches System r Semanticheskaja sistema From the point of view of analysis: a system of signs whose meanings are discerned from the process of generating ethnopoetic texts. From the point of view of synthesis, a system of rules which governs the meaningful arrangement of meaningful elements in ethnopoetic texts. (See 3.0.4.3). (SD) Semantic systems add to the concept of “collective representations” the feature of being structured cognitive guidelines (3.4.2) which are products of historical accretions and of mental processes. (MP 1972b: 13) Probabilistic unconscious model consisting of a set of permissible relations which govern thought processes in ethnopoiesis (0.9). (MP) g Kognitive Richtlinie r Kognitivnaja ramka In ethnopoetry (0.4), a traditionally accepted parameter according to which associations are defined as acceptable or non-acceptable. (MP)

3.4.3.1	Narrative complication	g Narrativer Konflikt; Knoten der Handlung r Zavjazka A conflict between roles (3.3.5) in a narrative, which constitutes the basis of the plot. (PVJ 1928a)	3.4.5.d Mytheme is an atomistic unit of mythical discourse. (MP 1967: 9)
3.4.3.2	Narrative resolution	g Narrative Auflösung; Auflösung der Handlung r Razvijazka Solution of the narrative complication (3.4.3.1) through the victory of one of the conflicting sides. (PVJ 1928a)	3.4.5.e Mythemes are analytic propositions. (MP 1967: 9)
3.4.4	Mediation	g Vermittlung r Mediacija The resolution of opposites (contradicting concepts) in an ethnopoetic work; brought about by a mediator (3.4.4.1). (MP)	3.4.5.f A contentual-structural unit which consists of the relationship between a subject and a predicate in terms of which the analyst rewrites a myth's components. (KME, MP 1971: 21)
3.4.4.1	Mediator	g Vermittler r Mediator An ambiguous term (2.1.5), fit to bring about the transition from an initial state in the narrative to a different, final state by way of mediation between opposites (3.4.4). (KME, MP 1971: 87)	3.5 Makrocomposition of texts 3.5.1 Cycle of works 3.5.2 Chain of narratives 3.5.2.1 Equivalent chain g Zyklus von Werken r Cikl proizvedenij Ways of combining whole narratives into bigger units, consisting of narrative (3.0.8.1) and non-narrative (3.0.8.3) units. (after JH 1976)
3.4.5.a	Mytheme Gross constituent unit	g Mythem r Mifema The true constituent of a myth (4.2.1) is not an isolated relation, but a bundle of such relations. (L-SC 1967: 207)	g Kette von Erzählungen r Cep' povestvovanij A group of independent whole works (3.3.2) with different plots and presented separately, in which the same character(s) appear. (Examples: A cycle of epics (4.3.2), dealing with the same group of characters; tales about Nasr-ad-Din).
3.4.5.b		Mytheme is a bundle of distinctive features. (L-SC 1960: 147)	g Freie Kette r Svobodnaja cep' An unordered chain (3.5.2); the order of the constituent narratives may change in each telling.

3.5.2.2 Framed chain	g Gerahmte Kette r Fiksirovannaja cep' An otherwise equivalent chain (3.5.2) with obligatory opening and closing episodes. (Examples: AT 1000, AT 1384).	3.5.5 Boundary element Opening and closing formulae
3.5.3.1 Embedding narrative	g Einbettende Erzählung r Vkljuchajushchee povestvovanie A narrative including another whole narrative (3.3.2) which is necessary for its own plot development. (Example: AT 850 *A-Jason 1965).	3.5.5.1 Opening tale
3.5.3.2 Embedded narrative	g Eingebettete Erzählung r Vkljuchennoe/Vstavnoje povestvovanie An independent whole narrative (3.3.2) embedded in another, introduced by being told by one of the characters (3.3.8.4) of the embedding narrative (3.5.3.1). The embedded narrative can otherwise be told by itself. Only particular types of narrative can be embedded (for instance, dilemma tales, i.e., narratives which end with a question). (Examples: AT 653 A, AT 945 IIb in AT 945 II; AT 449, AT 836 F* in AT 850 *A-Jason 1965).	3.6 Formulaic number
3.5.4.1 Enveloping narrative	g Rahmenerzählung r Obramljajushchee povestvovanie A narrative text which serves to introduce (by the words of its characters – 3.3.8.4) other whole narratives (3.3.2), unconnected to it plot-wise. Medieval collections in verse and prose follow this pattern.	g Formelnummer r Formul'noe chislo The number of times, elements in the work on all levels, both structural and contentual, are multiplied. Some formulaic numbers also serve as symbols for loosely defined quantity values (many, few). Every culture and cultural area have their own formulaic numbers.
3.5.4.2 Enveloped narrative	g Eingerahmte Erzählung r Obramlennoe povestvovanie Any narrative used as a filler in the enveloping narrative (3.5.4.1).

GENRE IN ETHNOPOETRY

4.0

Genre in ethnopoetry

g Gattungen der Ethnopoetik
r Zhanry narodnoj literatury/slovesnosti

A group of ethnopoetic texts which share syntactic and semantic narrative patterns.

4.1

Mode of ethnopoetry

g Ethnopoetischer Modus
r Etnopoeticheskij modus

The existential medium relationship between man and the world, as manifested in ethnopoetry. Mode is one of the most important formative elements of ethnopoetic genre. Each genre is "set" in a particular mode.
(JH 1976)

4.1.1 Realistic mode

g Modus des Realistischen
r Realisticheskij modus

Mode of genres in which man confronts his fellows on the human level, involving essentially no extra-natural (fabulous, according to modern scientific standards*) elements; some non-natural elements may appear on a secondary level. Genres set in this mode are the novella (4.3.1), the epic (4.3.2), the lyric (4.3.4.1) and the ballad (4.3.4.2).

* The distinction between the natural and the extra-natural is not universal; here that which has developed in Western culture will be accepted. The distinction between the sacred and the profane is universal. The profane, however, is not to be equalized with the natural.

4.1.2 Fabulous mode

g Modus des Fabelhaften/Nicht-natürlichen
r Sverhestestvennyj modus

Mode in which man confronts extra-natural forces. The fabulous mode is divided into the numinous and the marvelous modes.

4.1.2.0

Components of the fabulous

g Komponenten des Fabelhaften
r Komponenty sverhestestvennogo

The fabulous is defined according to its relation to man.

(After OR 1917, JH 1977b)

4.1.2.0.1

Tremendum

g Tremendum
r Tremendum

The awesome and fear-inspiring aspect of the fabulous, which makes it inherently dangerous to man.

4.1.2.0.2

Majestas

g Majestas
r Majestas

The aspect of omnipotence and all pervasiveness of the fabulous, before which man feels complete nothingness.

4.1.2.0.3

Fascinosum

g Fascinosum
r Fascinosum

The irresistible fascination and attraction the omnipotent fabulous exerts over man.

4.1.2.1

Numinous mode

g Numinoser Modus
r Numinal'nyj modus

A mode in which man confronts an extra-natural world which is part of the society's belief systems. The numinous mode has three subdivisions: the creative, the miraculous and the demonic modes.

4.1.2.1.1

Creative mode

g Modus des Schöpferischen
r Kreativnyj modus

Mode in which man confronts the mythic creative aspect of his society's official belief system. Creativity exists in the mythic epoch when everything has the ability to either create or be subject to creative change. Mythic creative change has

	permanent impact on the order of nature and society. The creative mode is composed of all three components of the fabulous. Genres set in this mode are the myth (4.2.1) and the trickster tale (4.2.1.1).		Genres set in this mode are the sacred legend (4.2.2.1) ritual texts (4.2.2.3), and the etiological legend (4.2.2.4).
4.1.2.1.2 Mode of the miraculous	g Modus des Religiösen r Modus chudesnogo In this mode man confronts the miraculous aspect of his society's official belief system. The special property of the miraculous is the ability to perform miracles, as opposed to creative change (4.1.2.1.2.0.1). The miraculous mode has three manifestations: the sacred, the satanic, and the magic.	4.1.2.1.2.2 Mode of the satanic	A manifestation of the miraculous (4.1.2.1.2), in which a power opposed to the sacred power antagonizes man and his society. Exists only in cultures featuring religious dualism (so do Christianity and Zoroastrism). The satanic is composed of tremendum (4.1.2.0.1) (only the component of fear) and of fascinosum (4.1.2.0.3), and has the power of working sham-miracles (4.1.2.1.2.0.2). Genre set in this mode is the legend of the satanic (4.2.2.5).
4.1.2.1.2.0.1 Miracle	g Mirakel; Wunder r Chudo An isolated act of change of the order of nature brought about by the sacred power; though its results may be permanent, this act has no consequences for the order of nature and society in the future.	4.1.2.1.2.3 Mode of the magic	g Modus des Magischen r Modus magicheskogo Mode in which man confronts both his fellows and the world of demons. Magic is not an independent manifestation of the miraculous, but a "second generation" derivative of sacred (4.1.2.1.2.1 – white magic) and satanic (4.1.2.1.2.2 – black magic) manifestations; or, inherent in man (such as the evil eye; the power of curse and blessing). Magic is an exclusively human instrument in his confrontation with his fellow man and demons (4.1.2.1.3). It is composed of tremendum (4.1.2.0.1) (only the component of fear) and fascinosum (4.1.2.0.3). Genre set in this mode is the legend of the magic (4.2.2.7).
4.1.2.1.2.0.2 Sham-miracle	g Scheinwunder; Scheinmirakel r Psevdo-chudo Make-believe, ad hoc change in the order of nature. The changed object returns to its original form with the defeat or vanishing of the power which worked the sham-miracle. Satanic (4.1.2.1.2.2), magic (4.1.2.1.2.3) and demonic (4.1.2.1.3) powers work sham-miracles.	4.1.2.1.3 Mode of the demonic	g Modus des Dämonischen r Modus demonicheskogo In this mode man confronts the world of the demonic, which is part of the popular belief of the narrating community (2.4.1.2). The demonic may have three sources: sacred (4.1.2.1.2.1) (in the Moslem and Jewish culture systems), satanic
4.1.2.1.2.1 Mode of the sacred	g Modus des Heiligen r Sakral'nyj modus A manifestation of the miraculous in which the extra-natural entity confronting man is the sacred power of the official religion, friendly to man and to his society. The sacred is composed of all three components of the fabulous (4.1.2.0).

	(4.1.2.1.2.2) (Christianity), or it may be inherent in the demonic beings themselves with no connection with the official religion. The demonic is composed of tremendum (4.1.2.0.1) (component of fear) and fascinosum (4.1.2.0.3) (component of curiosity). Genres set in this mode are the demonic legend (4.2.2.6), the animal legend (4.2.2.6.1), robber legend (4.2.2.6.2) and the legend about early populations (4.2.2.6.3).
4.1.2.2 Marvelous mode	g Modus des Märchenhaften r Modus volshebnogo Mode in which man confronts a world which is irrelevant to the belief systems or moral codes of the narrating community (2.4.1.2), and is a system in its own right. The marvelous is composed of majestas (4.1.2.0.2) and fascinosum (4.1.2.0.3). Genre set in this mode is the fairy tale (4.2.3).	A Genres set in the numinous mode 4.2.1 Myth
4.1.3 Symbolic mode	g Modus des Symbolischen r Simvolicheskij modus Mode in which the characters (2.1.10) and requisites (2.1.12) fulfill a role which has no relation to their natural or fabulous qualities, and thus either symbolize other entities (signifier-signified relation), or expose a structural aspect of the ethnopoetic work. Genres set in this mode are the formula tale (4.4.1), the tall tale (4.4.2), the numskull tale (4.4.3), the parable (4.4.4), the proverb (4.4.5), the riddle (4.4.6) and the joke (4.4.7).	4.2.1.a 4.2.1.b 4.2.1.c

Man does not yet exist in the mythic epoch. Myth is essentially the verbal part of religious ritual, and can be couched both in prose and verse (mythic epic, 4.3.2.5). Myth is an ethnopoetic work, the deep structure of which offers the solution to a problem of a cognitive, sociological, technical or other central order; once this structure is found, it generates myths in the codes available to the narrative society. (KME, MP 1971: 30) A narrative is a myth only in a certain problematic situation: the situations, the problems and their solutions would then be psycho-socially equivalent to a rite. (KME, MP 1971: 65, n. 60) A stylistically definable discourse that expresses the strong components* of semantic systems (3.4.1). Myths display the structured, predominantly culture-specific, and shared, semantic systems which enable the members of a culture to understand each other and to cope with the unknown. 4.2 Genres set in the fabulous mode	g Gattungen im Modus des Fabelhaften r Zhanry v sverhestvennom moduse	* “Strong components” – A set of elementary narrative syntagms so related to other syntagms that they either generate dramatic momentum (“reflecting barriers” in the terminology of Markov chains) or terminate it (“absorbing barriers” in the same terminology). (MP)

Trickster tale	g "Trickster"—Mythe r Mif o triksterah	A "carnivalesque" myth, resembling swindler (4.3.1.3) or fool's novella (4.3.1.2). In the character of the Trickster, man confronts and overcomes the creative (4.1.2.1.1) by ridiculing it.
4.2.2
Legend	g Erzählung vom Jenseitigen r Predanie	Narrative in prose or verse (rare), in which man confronts the various numinous worlds.
4.2.2.1
Sacred legend	g Legende r Legenda	Legend in which the sacred power of the official religion solves the conflicts in the narrative. The sacred legend is set in the sacred mode (4.1.2.1.2.1), in the historical and eschatologic epochs (2.2.2) and in spaces 1–7 (2.3.1 – 2.3.7). (For genres in which man overcomes the sacred, see 4.3.1.6).
4.2.2.1.1
Saint's legend	g Heiligenlegende r Legenda o svatyh	A sacred legend recounting miracles (4.1.2.1.2.0.1) performed by a holy man, or for his sake by the sacred power.
4.2.2.1.1.1
Saint's childhood legend	g Kindheitslegende r Legenda o detstve svyatogo	A sacred legend (4.2.2.1) relating the miracles (4.1.2.1.2.0.1) which took place during the birth and childhood of a future holy person; the miracles indicate the great future awaiting the child.
4.2.2.2
Legend of fate	g Schicksalslegende r Legenda o sud'be	Legend in which man confronts fate. In cultures which recognize only one source of fabulous power — the sacred — fate is a manifestation of the sacred. Otherwise, it is an independent power and has demonic qualities. The genre is set in the historical period (2.2.2) and in spaces 1–4 (2.3.1 – 2.3.4).
4.2.2.3
	Ritual texts
	g Rituelle Texte r Ritual'nyj fol'klor	Includes several genres which have not been sufficiently investigated, such as the prayer, the hymn, the charm, the curse and the blessing, and the shamanic text. These texts often assume artistic form and are fundamentally set in the sacred mode (4.1.2.1.2.1). The universalistic religions which overlaid the pagan stratum, left most ritual texts stemming from this stratum, isolated, and relegated them to the realm of folk belief.
4.2.2.4
	Etiological legend
	g Aetiologische Sage r Etiologicheskoe predanie	Legend explaining the origin of certain secondary properties in nature or human society. Often, there is no necessary connection between the narrative itself and the property explained as the result of the action of a character in the narrative. The action is evaluated in the framework of the code of the sacred legend. This legend is set in the sacred mode but stands midway between the sacred legend and the myth, in the quasi-mythic epoch at the beginning of the historical period (2.2.2) and in space 4 (2.3.4).
4.2.2.4.1
	Etymological legend
	g Etymologische Sage r Etimologicheskoe predanie	An etiological legend explaining the origin of a name, set in the spaces 1–4 (2.3.1 – 2.3.4).
4.2.2.5
	Legend of the satanic
	g Teufelssage; Legende vom Satanischen r Legenda o djavole	Legend in which man confronts the devil in the general context of the struggle between God and the devil. Man is described as either weak and easily overcome by the devil or, as steady, fighting the devil with the help of the sacred forces. This legend is set in the mode of the satanic (4.1.2.1.2.2), in the historical period (2.2.2) and in space 4 (2.3.4).		is set in spaces 3–4 (2.3.3 – 2.3.4) and in a historical period (2.2.2). (Examples: AT 311, AT 312, AT 955, AT 956, AT 958).

4.2.2.5.1 Novella of the satanic		g Erzählung vom betrogenen Teufel r Novellisticheskaja skazka o cherte	4.2.2.6.3 Legend about early populations	g Riesensage r Legenda o karlikah/velikanah
4.2.2.6 Demonic legend		A sub-division of the legend of the satanic in which the satanic is overcome by man when he outwits the devil. These narratives are related to the swindler novella (4.3.1.3), and have a quasi-realistic setting.		Legend explaining the origin of minor features of nature by involuntary acts of members of a non-human population (giants or dwarfs) inhabiting the country before man (during the quasi-mythic epoch between the mythic epoch and human time (2.2.1.1)). Set in the demonic mode (4.1.2.1.3) this legend stands between the demonic legend and the myth and is set in spaces 1–2 (2.3.1 – 2.3.2).
4.2.2.6.1 Animal legend		g Sage r Bylichka o nechistoj sile	4.2.2.7 Legend of magic	g Hexensage r Legenda o koldovstve
		Legend in which man confronts the world of demons, the latter being part of folk belief. This legend is set in the demonic mode (4.1.2.1.3), in a specific historical period (2.2.2) and in spaces 1–2 (2.3.1 – 2.3.2).		Legend which recounts acts of humans possessing magic powers and struggles between black and white magic; it is set in the mode of the magic (4.1.2.1.2.3) in historical time (2.2.1.1) and in spaces 1–2 (2.3.1 – 2.3.2).
4.2.2.6.2 Robber legend		g Tiersage r Bylichka o zhivotnyh	B Genres set in the marvelous mode	g Gattungen im Modus des Märchenhaften r Zhanry v moduse volshebnogo
		Narrative about a confrontation between man and animals in their natural environment. The two are regarded as being on the same level (conversing, competing for the ownership of man's livestock), thereby investing the animal with demonic traits. This legend is set in spaces 1–2 (2.3.1 – 2.3.2), and in a specific historical period (2.2.2) ("recent generation" or "our generation"). (Examples: AT 156*, AT 156 C*, AT 161 A*).	4.2.3 Fairy tale	g Zauberhörchen r Volshebnaja skazka
		g Räubersage r Legenda o razbojnikah		Narrative in prose or verse (rare), in which man confronts the marvelous world. In the fairy tale weak man is helped by marvelous forces to win a royal spouse, kingdom, and/or a treasure; thereby he "demarvelizes" the marvelous world. The fairy tale is set in the marvelous mode (4.1.2.2), in human (2.2.1.1) and marvelous time (2.2.1.2) and in spaces 4–5 (2.3.4 – 2.3.5).
		Legend in which man confronts the demonic in human form: cannibalistic robbers, whom he overcomes by cleverness and courage. This legend	4.2.3.1 Heroic fairy tale	g Heldenmärchen r Geroicheskaja skazka
				A fairy tale about a human youth who enters the marvelous world, fulfills tasks and marries the princess of the fairy-land. This fairy tale is related to the romantic epic (4.3.2.4). (NAI 1973)	is related to the swindler novella (4.3.1.3) (AT 1000 – AT 1199).

4.2.3.2 Female fairy tale	g Frauenmärchen r Zhenskaja skazka	4.2.3.4.1.2 Sham-hero tale
	A fairy tale about: (a) A girl who wins a royal husband with the help of marvelous beings; (b) An innocent, persecuted girl/woman who wins her case before her antagonistic family, and is reunited with her (royal) husband. Type (b) is related to the sacred legend (4.2.2.1). (NAI 1973)	Tale exactly imitating the dragon-fighter of the heroic fairy tale (4.2.3.1) (AT 300), in which a cowardly hero pretends to be heroic, and by lucky chance fulfills the same tasks the hero of the fairy tale fulfills by marvelous means (AT 1640).
4.2.3.3 Reward-and-punishment fairy tale	g Lohn-und-Strafe Märchen r Skazka o "Pravde i Krivde"	4.2.3.4.1.3 Novellistic fairy tale
	A fairy tale with two parallel heroes (both either male or female), one neutral and the other evil, who get rewarded and punished, respectively. The rewarded hero wins princess and kingdom, or only treasures. Having a strong ethical component, this fairy tale is related to the sacred legend (4.2.2.1). (NAI 1973)	Tale in which hero wins his princess by a ruse (often obscene) or even by crimes, instead of by fulfilling a marvelous task. This tale is related to the swindler novella (4.3.1.3) (AT 850 ff., AT 950, AT 1525 *S-Jason 1965).
4.2.3.4 Carnivalesque fairy tale	g Zaubermaerchenparodie r Karnaval'naja volshebnaja skazka	4.2.3.4.2 Carnivalesque female fairy tale
	Fairy tale in which man overcomes the marvelous.	Tale in which a girl wins her prince by her wisdom and cleverness. This tale is related to the wisdom and swindler novella (4.3.1.1, 4.3.1.3) (AT 326, AT 875 ff., AT 880 ff.).
4.2.3.4.1 Carnivalesque heroic fairy tale	g Parodie vom Heldenmärchen r Karnaval'naja geroicheskaja skazka	4.2.3.4.3 Carnivalesque reward-and-punishment fairy tale
	Hero wins his bride by cleverness, ruse and lucky incidents.	Parody of the reward-and-punishment fairy tale (4.2.3.3) with a weakened ethical component. The marvel tends to be grotesque (ass excreting gold – AT 563).
4.2.3.4.1.1 Stupid ogre tale	g Märchen von dummen Riesen r Skazka o glupom velikane	4.3 Genres set in the realistic mode
	A fairy tale in which a weak, but clever man overcomes mighty, but stupid ogres. This fairy tale	g Gattungen im Modus des Realistischen r Zhanry v realisticheskym moduse

4.3.1	Novella	g Novelle r Novellisticheskaja skazka A tale in prose or verse (rare) in which man confronts his fellow man in wisdom, cleverness, morality, foolishness, or cruelty. The novella is set in the historical period (2.2.2) and in space 4 (2.3.4).	(4.3.1.3) novella, the characters of which are natural animals or plants, behaving more or less in their natural way (many of the AT 1—AT 299 types).
4.3.1.1	Wisdom novella	g Weisheitsnovelle r Skazka ob ume A novella which centers around a wise action (a wise judgement, wise and witty answers, or riddling which the protagonist gives or follows, good precepts — AT 910 — AT 929).	4.3.1.6 Parson's novella
4.3.1.2	Fool's novella	g Narrennovelle r Skazka o glupcah A tale in which a fool harms himself in a minor fashion by his own folly (AT 1675 ff.).	4.3.1.7 Rumor
4.3.1.3	Swindler novella	g Schwindlernovelle r Skazka o hitrecah A novella which centers around a clever trick which the cleverer character plays on a less clever one, in order to win a small material gain, or a trifling physical pleasure (AT 1526 ff.).	4.3.1.7 Rumor
4.3.1.4	Horror novella	g Moritatnovelle r Skazka uzhasov A novella telling of a horrible incident, such as a murder, suicide, incest, rape. In the final outcome of the narrative a culprit may lose. This genre is usually set in spaces 2–3 (2.3.2 — 2.3.3) and in a specific, known point in time (2.2.2). The horror novella is related to the rumor (4.3.1.7), the broadside ballad (4.5.2.0) and the legend (4.2.2).	4.3.2 Epic
4.3.1.5	Animal novella	g Tiernovelle r Skazka o zhivotnyh; Zhivotnaja skazka A wisdom (4.3.1.1), fool's (4.3.1.2) or swindler	4.3.2.1 Historical epic
			g Historisches Epos r Istoricheskij epos Epic telling of a struggle between nations, tribes, or families, keeping to the real historical framework of personages and events. This epic is set in a specific historical time (2.2.2) and in spaces 2–3 (2.3.2 — 2.3.3). (Examples: Iliad; South Slavic epic; Indian Mahabharata).

4.3.2.2 National epic

g Nationales Epos r Nacional'nyj epos

Epic which tells of a national or tribal struggle in super-natural proportions, and which does not adhere to real personages and events. The heroes are super-human national symbols. This epic is set in the national epic epoch (2.2.2) and in space 3 (2.3.3). (Examples: Russian bylina; Persian Shah-name).

4.3.2.3 Universal epic

g Universales Epos r Universal'nyj epos

Epic about the struggle between man and hostile ogres surviving from the mythic epoch (2.2.1.3) into the post-mythic period; the human hero is often half-divine and represents humanity and the friendly divinities in confrontation with the evil forces. This epic is set on the borderline between mythic (2.2.1.3) and human time (2.2.1.1) and in spaces 4–5 (2.3.4 – 2.3.5). (Examples: First part of the Sumerian epic of Gilgamesh; exploits of Hercules; Indian Ramayana; Germanic Beowulf).

4.3.2.4 Romantic epic

g Romantisches Epos r Romanticheskij epos

Epic about a warrior-hero who wins a bride, or about a warrior and his bride/wife who overcome obstacles which hostile forces impose on their marriage/reunion. This epic is related to the heroic fairy tale (4.2.3.1), but is essentially set in the realistic mode (4.1.1) although elements of fabulous modes often appear in it (especially marvelous elements; no creative elements). This epic is set in spaces 3–4 (2.3.3. – 2.3.4), in human time (2.2.1.1), often in a specific historical period (2.2.2) and is a sub-division of historical or national epic, according to the epic sub-genre prevalent in the culture. (Examples: Odyssey; contemporary Central Asian epics).

4.3.2.5 Mythic epic

g Mythisches Epos r Mificheskij epos

Epic about physical struggle and wars between deities, the result of which is creation. This epic is set in the creative mode (4.1.2.1.1), in mythic time and space 8 (2.3.8). (Examples: Babylonian Enurua Elish; Hittite epic about Ullikumis). (See 4.2.1).

4.3.2.6 Carnivalesque epic

g Parodie vom Epos r Karnaval'nyj epos

Work in the prosodic form of the epic prevalent in the narrating community (2.4.1.2), the subject of which is (a) a picturing of its heroes as symmetrically opposed to the heroes of the other epic sub-genres (hero in carnivalesque epic is cowardly, ugly, poor; heroine old, ugly) or, (b) a tall tale (4.4.2).

4.3.3 Historical song

g Historisches Volkslied r Istoricheskaja pesnya

A narrative song with a special tune which tells on a low level of symbolization of a real historical event. This song is set in the realistic mode (4.1.1), and is related to the historical epic (4.3.2.1) and the broadside ballad (4.5.20). It is set in a specific historical period (2.2.2) and in concrete points in spaces 3–4 (2.3.3 – 2.3.4).

4.3.4 Folk song Ethnic song

g Volkslied r Narodnaja pesnya

Broad sense: Any work of ethnopoetry in verse texture.

Restricted sense: A work in verse which is performed only with its special melody; epics (4.3.2) are not included here, since they are performed to a formulaic carrier-melody (German: Zeilenmelodie). Various genres can be couched in this form.

4.3.4.1	Lyric song	g Lyrisches Volkslied r Liricheskaja narodnaja pesnya	4.4	Genres set in the symbolic mode	g Gattungen im Modus des Symbolischen r Zhanry v simvolicheskem moduse
		A non-narrative poem expressing personal emotions; set in the realistic mode (4.1.1), in the “now” time (2.2.2) and “here” space (2.3.0).			Genres set in the symbolic mode (4.1.3) (except the topsy-turvy tale – 4.4.2.2, the numskull tale – 4.4.3, the parable – 4.4.4, and the proverb – 4.4.5) are not set in the temporal (2.2.2) and spatial (2.3.0) framework of ethnopoetry; to them, this scheme is irrelevant.
4.3.4.2	Folk ballad	g Volksballade r Narodnaja ballada	4.4.1	Formula tale	g Formelerzählung; Kettenmärchen r Formul'naja skazka
		Undefined; poems of various genres, both narrative and non-narrative; occupy a middle position between lyrics and epics, and are set in various modes.			A story in prose or verse, composed as a chain of formulae which are repeated with small changes. The formula tale is built as a quasi-narration (3.0.8.3).
4.3.4.2.1	Child's ballad	g “Childs Ballade” r Ballada Chajl'da	4.4.1.1	Chain tale	g Kettenerzählung r Skazka-ceepochka
		Any of the texts which F.J. Child included in his collection of Scottish and English ballads (1888–1892). The poems belong to different genres, which are not well defined.			Formula tale in which the same formula is repeated with a change of contentual terms (2.1) from one link to the next.
4.3.4.3	Lullaby Cradle song	g Wiegenlied r Kolybel'naja pesnya	4.4.1.2	Cumulative tale	g Kumulative Erzählung r Kumul'ativnaja skazka
		Lyric song which the mother sings to the child. The contents of the songs vary.			Formula tale in which a link repeats all the preceding ones, adding with each new link an episode with a new contentual term (2.1) or event.
4.3.4.4	Dirge Lament	g Klagelied r Prichitanie; Plach	4.4.1.3	Round	g Rondo r Kol'cevaja skazka
		A non-narrative poem sung at funeral rites to lament the deceased, and on various departures (of the bride from her parental home; of the recruit).			Formula tale which starts at a certain point of the narration and from there on repeats itself time and again (AT 2320).
4.3.4.5	Macaronic song	g Makkaronisches Lied r Makaronicheskaja pesnya	4.4.1.4	Mock tale	g Neckgeschichte r Dokuchnaja skazka
		A poem composed from words of various languages; the mixture results in a prosodically and semantically well-structured song.			Short formula tale which starts as a narration and ends abruptly with a pun (AT 2250 ff.).

4.4.1.5 Endless tale

g Endlose Geschichte
r Beskonechnaja skazka

Short formula tale, starting as a narration which immediately stops with an endless enumeration of some entity (AT 2280, AT 2300 – AT 2301).

4.4.2 Tall tale

g Lügenmärchen
r Nebylica

Quasi-narrative story in prose or verse, in which entities have qualities different from their normal qualities (but no fabulous qualities).

4.4.2.1 Tale of lying

g Lügengeschichte
r Zaviral'shchina

Tall tale about exaggerated dimensions of a chain of objects, or about exaggerated results of actions (AT 1875 ff., AT 1930, AT 1962 A).

4.4.2.2 Topsy-turvy world tale

g Geschichte von der verkehrten Welt
r Skazka o mire navyvorot

Tall tale in prose or verse in which entities, both objects and relations, have qualities different from their counterparts in reality, usually symmetrically opposite. Topsy-turvy-land lies in space 5 (2.3.5) (AT 1930, AT 1935, AT 1962, AT 2335).

4.4.3 Numskull tale

g Schildbürgerschwank
r Skazka o poshehoncah

A narrative story in which numskulls (infra-men) hurt themselves because they do not know the basic laws of nature or of reasoning, and normal man has to help them. Numskull-country lies in space 5 (2.3.5); the action takes place in historical time (2.2.2) (AT 1200 ff.).
(JH 1972)

4.4.4 Parable

g Parabel
r Pritchka

Quasi-narrative story which functions as a signifier of an idea, argument and/or moral (= signifiand). Parables are distributed all over the space (2.3.0) and time framework (2.2.2).

4.4.5 Proverb

g Sprichwort
r Poslovica

A non-narrative genre consisting of a whole, independent sentence, constructed according to definite prosodic, grammatical, semantic and logic patterns (in prose or in verse), and expressing a complete idea, often through a poetic image, which may signify an indefinite number of signifiands (= life situations).

4.4.5.1 Idiom Proverbial phrase

g Sprichwortliche Redensart
r Frazeologizm

An expression, the meaning of which is not the sum of its elements. Idioms are not built according to definite prosodic, grammatical, semantic or logical patterns, neither are they whole sentences nor do they express a complete idea. They are used within the sentence, substituting for a lexeme, or several lexemes in it. The substituting idiom may feature a poetic image. The idiom is unambiguous and stands in a one-to-one relationship to the concept it replaces. It is doubtful whether idioms should be considered ethnopoetry.

4.4.6 Riddle

g Rätsel
r Zagadka

A non-narrative genre in verse or prose, which signifies one or several (a small number) of signifiands, which have to be guessed.

4.4.7 Joke

g Witz
r Shutka

A non-narrative genre, in prose or in verse (rare)

	which is based on a punch line. The mode in which the joke is set is not clear. Possibly, it is the symbolic mode (4.1.3), but includes elements of all other modes and genres, and seems to have a number of sub-genres, which have not yet been explored.		as they grow up; the works are transmitted from one generation of children to the next. Various genres of ethnopoetry are used by children.
4.4.7.1 Catch tale	g Fanggeschichte r Shutka-podvoh A joke demanding an answer from the listener, which inevitably puts him in a ridiculous situation (AT 2200).	4.5.4 Game tale	g Spielliéd r Igrovoj text Narratives in prose and verse which form the contents of children's games. Sometimes formula tales (4.4.1) serve this purpose (such as counting-out rhymes).
4.5 Other genres	g Andere Gattungen r Drugie zhanry	4.5.5 Ritual song	g Brauchtumslied r Obrjadovaja pesnya Song which forms an obligatory part of a custom or rite; this rite does not belong to the official religion.
A Quasi-genres	g Scheingattungen r Kvazi-zhanry Group of works which do not belong to a definite genre. The group is determined by use of the work or, by the group of people which use the works.	4.5.6 Anecdote	g Anekdot r Anekdot o znamenityh ljudjah A short story from the life of a known person. This can be any kind of legend (4.2.2), novella (4.3.1) or joke (4.4.7).
4.5.1 Graffiti	g Graffiti r Graffiti Inscriptions on walls of public buildings (mostly lavatories). Sometimes these inscriptions may have a literary form (in verse or prose).	4.5.7 Folk theatre	g Volksschauspiel r Narodnyj teatr Theatrical performance improvised by non-professional performers. These range from mummers' performances, as part of religious festivals, to carnivals and whole plays. A whole rite, consisting of textual, musical, kinetic and scenic aspects, may also be considered a theatrical performance. According to the definition used here, folk theatre is not a genre proper, but a particular texture (3.1.3), in the same manner as "verse" and "prose" are shapes of texture.
4.5.2 Nursery rhyme	g Kinderreim r Detskij stishok A song or poem, which adults recite to children. Includes various genres, such as formula tales (4.4.1) in verse form, tall tales (4.4.2), tongue twisters, puns.	4.5.8 Fixed form genres	g Gattungen mit festen Formen r Fiksirovannye zhanry A group of genres having a seemingly invariable
4.5.3 Children's folklore	g Kinderlied r Detskij fol'klor Works current among children which are forgotten wording (3.1.2) and texture (3.1.3). As the texture of these genres is organized in rather rigid prosodic models, the possibilities of variability (3.2.6) are more limited, what causes the illusion of their being "fixed". Such are: proverb (4.4.5), riddle (4.4.6), some kinds of jokes (4.4.7), and to a lesser degree, song (4.3.4).

4.5.9 Migratory legend	g Wandsage r Brodjachee predanie A legend (4.2.2) told among different people, and localized by them in various places and times. (ChR 1958)	4.5.14 Legenda

4.5.19*Contes des fées*

g Feeenmärchen
r Skazka o fejah

Imitations and reworking of folktales with educational purposes in mind, in which a good fairy rewards the virtuous and punishes the wicked (17–18th century France).

4.5.20*Broadside ballad*

g Bänkellied
r Ulichnaja ballada

Songs, sung by their authors in the market place, the printed text of which was sold on the spot. The contents were “news” of awful happenings, true or imaginary: wars, fires, crimes. The themes of broadside ballads were often taken from folk-literature and again launched into folk-tradition, especially as horror novella (4.3.1.4).
